LUDWIG INSTITUTE The Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research is a renowned international community of scientists focused on cancer research, with nine branches spread all around the world. One of them is located at UNIL.

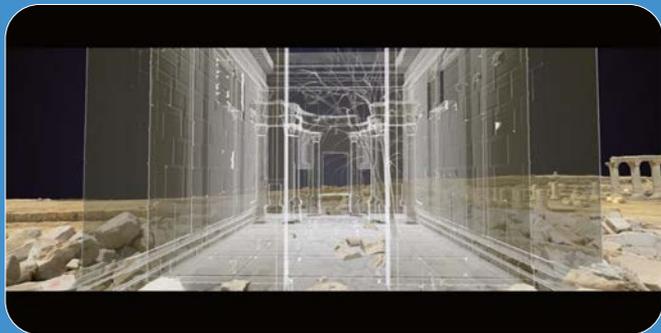

YOUTH OLYMPIC GAMES UNIL was the official partner of the third edition of the Winter Youth Olympic Games, a major international multi-sports event and cultural festival for teenagers held in Lausanne, home of the International Olympic Committee

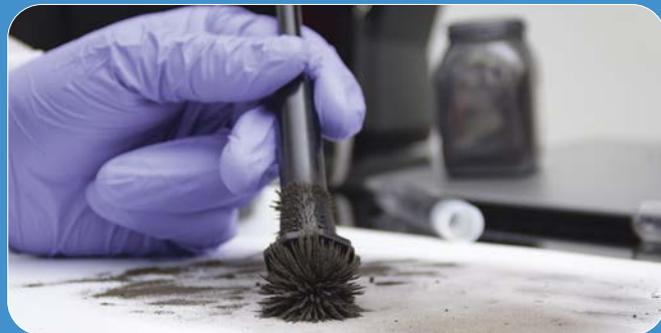

NOBEL PRIZE In 2017, Jacques Dubochet received the Nobel Prize in Chemistry together with Joachim Frank and Richard Henderson for developing cryo-electron microscopy for the high-resolution structure determination of biomolecules in solution.

VORTEX After hosting the athletes of the Winter Youth Olympic Games, Vortex, a new circular building at the heart of the UNIL campus, now offers housing to UNIL students and academic guests.

ARCHAEOLOGY The Collart-Palmyre project aims to digitize the collection of Paul Collart's archives to allow a 3D virtual reconstruction of the Temple of Baalshamin destroyed by ISIS in 2015.

FORENSICS UNIL hosts the School of Criminal Justice, a world-class institute at the forefront of research in Forensic Sciences, whose expertise is sought far beyond Swiss borders to help solve difficult criminal cases.
