

Nader Nassif, PhD

Nader Nassif is an experienced health promotion professional with multidisciplinary and multisectoral competence and experience. He holds a bachelor of science in environmental health from the American university of Beirut , a Master of public health from Tulale university in health communication and education and a PhD in health education and promotion from the university of Alabama at Birmingham.

He teaches environmental health, health promotion as well as research methods and program planning and evaluation at ISSP.