

Nabil Makhoul, MSc, MPH

Mr. Nabil Makhoul is a lecturer in Health Economics and Financial Management for Health Care Organization. He is currently the coordinator of the Development and International Relations at the Higher Institute of Public Health at Saint Joseph University.

His professional experience includes management, teaching, consulting, and more than two decades of experience in private business. He has previously worked in different management role in the health care industry, specifically in hospital setting, where he served as a General Manager of a hospital in Lebanon and was a board member of the Lebanese Syndicate of Hospitals. He has been involved in consulting projects related to the health sector with national and international bodies. He conducts workshops and lectures in different managerial functions, leadership, finance and accounting, people and culture, conflict management, procurement, quality management. He has studies in costing of the health care services, economic evaluation, and financial sustainability. He earned his master degree in economics and his master degree in public health from the Lebanese University; and a university diploma in Health care management from University of Bordeaux<sup>2</sup>, and a university diploma in conflict management from Saint Joseph University.